CIBL Shares May Now Be Traded on the Pink Sheets®

December 5, 2008 – CIBL, Inc. (“CIBL” or the “Company”) announced today that its shares may now be traded on the Pink Sheets®. CIBL’s ticker symbol is CIBY.PK and the CUSIP number assigned to CIBL shares is 12543Y 104.

CIBL was spun off from LICT Corporation (“LICT”) on November 19, 2007. CIBL’s shares were not registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”), and for that reason restrictions were placed on the transferability of the shares at the time of the spin-off. These restrictions are explained in the information statement issued on October 15, 2007 describing the spin-off, which is available on the Company’s web site at www.ciblinc.com. The restrictions are also set forth in a legend on the CIBL share certificates and in the records of CIBL’s transfer agent, American Stock Transfer & Trust Company. Due to the restrictions, there has not been a public trading market in CIBL’s shares during the year since its spin-off from LICT.

Now, however, the requirements of the SEC’s Rule 144 governing the transfer and sale of CIBL stock have been satisfied. This is due primarily to the expiration of the Rule’s one-year holding period, and to CIBL’s public disclosure of financial and other information since the spin-off. As permitted by the Rule, nearly all of CIBL’s stockholders may now offer to sell their shares if they wish, or bid to buy additional shares of CIBL on the Pink Sheets® marketplace. Only those stockholders who are “affiliates” of the Company, e.g., officers, directors and anyone who owns 5% or more of CIBL’s stock, are still subject to certain restrictions under the Rule on their sale of CIBL shares. (If you have any question as to whether you are an “affiliate” of CIBL, you should consult your legal or financial advisor.)

Anyone wishing to trade in CIBL shares may contact their broker or place an order for the desired transaction by any other available means of their choice, using the ticker symbol CIBY.PK.

In addition, anyone who has questions concerning the trading of CIBL stock is welcome to contact Robert E. Dolan, who is currently serving as the Company’s Interim CEO and Interim CFO (see contact information below).
